CUERNOS

Cuernos are made from a rolled pastry in the shape of a bull's horn. They are similar to a French croissant, but not as rich. They are also topped with the traditional sugar crust pastry (pasta) – a mixture of white flour, sugar and margarine (butter). In some regions, like in Oaxaca, cuernos are also called Cuernitos dulces con pasta as in the picture from the panadería Columba. Cuernos have a rich tasting dough with elements of vanilla and cinnamon for flavour.

CUERNOS WITH ALMOND

CONCHAS

Conchas are one of the most widely recognised Mexican pan dulces, whose name is taken after its shell shape.

The concha is a slightly sweet roll with a shell-patterned topping made from the traditional sugar crust pastry (pasta) – a mixture of white flour, sugar and butter, with the occasional addition of cinnamon or chocolate.
